Train the Trainer Program

Migration, Refuge & Asylum Designing Workshops for Youth on the Topic of Human Rights

April – June, 2018

European Youth Education and Meeting Centre (EJBW)

The Youth Education and Meeting Centre in Weimar (EJBW) is one of the biggest civic education organizations in Germany and offers seminars and workshops for both high school and university students and multiplier such as teachers and trainers. The EJBW focuses on topics in the fields of politics, society, and economics. It wants to provide everyone a space to discuss current questions and aims to support the development of a free, open and democratic mind-set. The programs at EJBW encourage people to take a broader view in every respect, to try new things and to develop a vision for themselves and for society.

The Train the Trainer Program

We want our pool of trainers to grow and become more diverse. In particular, we want to include more trainers with migration or refugee backgrounds. With this training program we aim to qualify people interested in workshop and seminar facilitation to work in the field of civic education at our centre and beyond.

We will focus on specific topics in small working groups, exchanging experiences, and learn from each other. The outcomes from these working groups will be transformed into methods for a workshop format for young people. The seminar will be held in English and German.

Some of the participants will be university students from Weimar. In addition, we are looking in particular — but not exclusively — for people with first-hand refugee experience, regardless of their current status and education.

Your Aims

- You are interested in getting to know didactic methods for non-formal civic education and gaining experience in working with groups of high school students and young adults
- You would like to widen your network and get into contact with educational organizations and NGOs in Germany
- Become a member of a pool of trainers offering workshops in the field of your expertise and interests

Our Aims

- We aim to further develop a pool of qualified trainers, workshop facilitators and experts who can teach and work for us and partner organizations
- To encourage people of all backgrounds to engage in civic education
- Replace stereotypes, prejudice, and disinformation by acceptance, empathy and knowledge.
